Commercial Advertiser.

From the Evening Post. Love Us at Home.

Ah, yes ! we can bear the day's burden and heat, The dust and rude jost lings we find in the street, And censuring whispers that float till they meet
The earn they were never intended to greet,
If they love us sincerely at home.

We can bear by the crowd to be harried along, Down troiden, supplanted, and oppressed by the strong; We can bear even lasting and unprovoked wrong, f our hearts through it all can chant truly the song, Oh, they love us most dearly at home.

We can bear a wild storm, be it snow, hail or rain; Heavy losses, instead of the long looked for gain ; pbraidings and shadows that creep round our name, and threaten its brightness to hide or to stain, If they love us sincerely at home.

h, love us at home! For this treasure we plead, With all else, this withheld, we are poor, indeed! Take all, but leave this, and with voices agreed, We will sing with glad hearts, whatever our need, They still love us they love us at home."

SMILES.—Nothing on earth can smile but man!
Gems may flash reflected light; but what is a diamond-flash, compared to an eye-flash and mirth-flash? Flowers cannot smile. This is a charm which even they cannot claim. Birds cannot smile, nor any living thing. It is the prerogative of man. It is the color which love wears, and cheerfulness, and joy—these three. It is the light in the window of the face, by which the heart signifies to father, husband, or friend, that it is at home and waiting. A face that cannot smile is like a bud that cannot blossom, and dries up on the stalk. Laughter is day, and sobriety is night; and a smile is the twilight that hovers gently between both, more bewitching than either. But all smiles are not alike. The cheerfulness of vanity is not like the smile of love. The smile of gratified pride is not like the radiance of goodhass and truth. The rains of summer fall alike upth all trees and shrubs. But when the storm pass, and on every leaf hangs a drop, each gentle puff a wind brings down a pretty showar, and every drop by age with it something of the nature of the leaf or blot our on which it hung; the roadside leaf yields due the walnut leaf, bitterness; some formers, poison; while the grape-blossom, the rose, and the sweet-brock, light down perfumed. And so it is with smiles, light every heart perfumes according to its nature—bloshness is acrid; pride, bitter; and will, sweet an fragrant.—Heary Ward Beech.
